

ABSTRACT

The motility of sperm in a biological sample is increased by inactivating or reducing the biological activity of inflammatory cytokines present in the sample.